Overview

One of the key challenges faced by HR professionals today is to attract and retain talent. Oracle E-Business Suite offers very advanced Talent Management capabilities, which are often under utilized by clients, primarily due to a lack of preparation for it. In this presentation, we will discuss the various facets of Talent Management and provide tips on key areas where you can organize your processes and data prior to your implementation. The results will be a shorter and well-structured implementation. Be resourceful and imaginative as you prepare for and progress through your implementation.

Background

- This presentation is based on my implementation of Talent Management at University Hospitals, Cleveland OH. UHHS has been live on Oracle e-Business Suite since 2003. UHHS has implemented 21 eBusiness Suite Applications as of March 2007.

Background

- The introduction of TM grew out of a need to know more about the employee base as a tool for managing the future for the Organization as a whole.
- The expected benefits of Talent Management included peer review functionality, new performance appraisal templates, a self appraisal template, competency checklists and questionnaires.

- What are your goals in using the Talent Management Module?
- Do you intend to use TM across your entire Organization from the beginning or roll it out to specific areas and then expand its usage?
- Do you have Competencies, Rating Scales and Behavior Indicators already defined?

- Is TM going to be used in conjunction with Oracle Learning Management?
- What method(s) do you currently use to evaluate/conduct appraisals of your employees?
- How often?
- Who does the evaluations?

- How do you store and retrieve the information?
- How is the information used?
- Is TM going to be linked to external and/or internal recruiting?
- The functionality of Skills Matching within Oracle identifies the individuals that have needed skills but also ranks them from most to least qualified.

Concepts for Talent Management

- Think of Skills and Competencies as one in the same.
- Asking “How well an employee performs these skills” will be the foundation for creation of your Rating Scales and Weighting those values.
- Understanding the desired behaviors in given situations will be the building blocks for your Behavior Indicators.
- Objectives are the method of looking to the future for your employees.
- Appraisals and Questionnaires are the mechanisms by which you record the results based on Competencies, Ratings, Behavior Indicators and Objectives.

This is where it all comes together.

Primary Components of Talent Management

- Competencies/Skills
- Objectives
- Appraisals
- Questionnaires
- Rating Scales and Weighting
- Behavior Indicators

And you say as you begin your preparation:
“We don’t have any of this defined and don’t know where to start”

Use Additional Sources

In other words, you don't need to re-invent the wheel !

- Be creative in your thinking about where you might find the information for your TM implementation.
- Trade Groups to which your employees and Organization belong can often provide lists of Competencies/Skills, Rating Scales and Behavior Indicators.
- Use the Internet by querying Key Words on the major search engines like  or

Competencies and Rating Scales

- We define competencies as those measurable skills, abilities and personality traits that identify successful employees against defined roles within an organisation.
- Core competencies are those competencies that any successful employee will need to rise through the organization; the level of accomplishment may vary but the essential competency will remain the same. Competencies can, of course, change over time and should not be regarded as static.

Competencies and Rating Scales

- They uniquely define an organization's values and requirements as expressed through its people.
- They form the cornerstone for the implementation of HR systems such as selection, appraisal, management development and succession planning.

Objectives

Objectives tend to be unique to an Organization. Oracle now provides the ability to retain those objectives in a Library, allowing for re-use as your Talent Management system expands. Oracle allows you to assign both Quantitative and Qualitative attributes to Objectives.

Questionnaires

- Questionnaires can be extremely beneficial to any organization in doing a variety of assessments. They can substitute for an Appraisal and may be more readily accepted because they appear less formal.
- Questionnaires can be developed to address gathering information on many levels, such as a Leadership Satisfaction Survey or suggestions for corporate or personal development goals to be incorporated in an overall business strategy.

Appraisal Questionnaire

Instructions: Please complete the questionnaire below for the individual being evaluated. Your candid response is important for the performance evaluation and developmental feedback of this individual.

Why? - If you want to keep your business pushing forward, it is important that you perform regular evaluations on the performance of your greatest asset - your employees.

How - The appraisal template is the design document for an appraisal. Its main function is to configure all sections of the appraisal to suit the appraisal purpose or enterprise requirements: you can use a single appraisal template throughout the enterprise.
